Taxing employer contributions in excess of Rs. 7,50,000 to Recognised funds

If the employer in aggregate has contributed to Superannuation Fund, Recognised Provident Fund or National Pension Scheme in excess of Rs. 7,50,000 in a year, then such excess contribution is liable for tax in the hands of the employee. Also, the interest / dividend / any other return earned on such excess contribution, would also be taxable in the hands of employee as a perquisite. Earlier this provision was applicable only towards the contribution in excess of Rs. 1,50,000 in case of Superannuation Fund and now this has been enhanced to other two funds also. There maybe practical difficulties in determining the income earned on such excess contribution.

In order to align the applicability of the MLIs along the lines of the DTAA's, an amendment is proposed to be made include the purpose of the MLI in the provisions of the Act and to extend the same to MLI which have been notified in this regard. India has signed the MLI. MLI is an outcome of G20-OECD project to tackle BEPS.
